

A close-up photograph of a textured surface that mimics the appearance of tree bark. The texture is highly irregular, with numerous cracks, creases, and ridges. The color palette is earthy and muted, featuring shades of brown, tan, grey, and off-white. Interspersed within these tones are subtle streaks and patches of color, including hints of pink, purple, and green, which are applied in a way that suggests natural staining or lichen growth. The overall effect is one of organic complexity and depth.

Pâte à papier et peinture (gros plan tronc d'arbre)

